

Abstract

A gateway unit is described for connecting subsystems, in vehicles in particular, in which at least one modular logical software gateway is used which routes messages between precisely 5 two subnets, thus providing only one individual connection pathway.

Figure 5